

NAME: Comet and Umbro

GENDER: Males

DATE OF BIRTH: May 7, 2022

If you want endless purrs and cuddles, Comet and Umbro are up for the job! Comet is the larger of the two, with white ticks along his fur that resemble comets shooting across a night sky. Umbro is all black, resembling an umbra, the shadow thrown by a total eclipse of the sun.

Umbro is the cat version of Toothless from "How to Train Your Dragon". He is quick, graceful, and quiet. Like a black liquid he slinks his way around his foster room, tumbling and running with his brother. If these two had activity buttons, they would be set to "turbo" most of the day. Comet & Umbro seem to have an endless appetite for jingle balls or teaser toys. Instead of meowing they gently squeak. It reminds their foster mom of a chimpanzee, earning them the nickname "The Monkey Boys".

When it is time for cuddles, they roll around on your lap and give you kisses and head bumps, purring the entire time. They both love to be held and petted, and Umbro will jump onto your shoulders to rub his body around the back of your head. Comet is a little more polite with his affection, waiting to be picked up or invited to get all the love. Then it is back to their acrobatic games of tag around the room.

These two will need to be adopted together and would do great in a home with children of all ages. They are very tolerant of being handled and will need regular play and human interaction. They will also do well in a house with friendly dogs if properly introduced. They are minimal shedders and have great litter box manners.

Comet & Umbro have been microchipped, neutered, vaccinated against rabies and distemper, and tested negative for FeLV and FIV. They are currently gobbling up Fancy Feast classic pate.
