Background: Sabu was purchased on craigslist by someone living in a mobile home park in West Virginia who thought she was a “white Bengal” cat. They weren’t very responsible with her and another female cat they had, and never got them proper veterinary care or spayed to prevent pregnancies. The other cat got pregnant and the owner kept the kittens, but the mama cat began attacking Sabu after she had her babies. Because it was a small mobile home Sabu was confined to a bathroom space. So the owner decided to give her to a rescue where she could find a good home.

Medical or special care notes: Sabu has had vaccinations for rabies and distemper, is microchipped, and has been altered. She has tested negative for FIV and FeLV. She is eating Fancy Feast classic pate and Purina One kibble.
